HOW TO SPOT A FAKE RESTAURANT INSPECTOR

Does your health inspector wear an identification badge? Do they have official business cards?

An Environmental Health Specialist (aka "health inspector") with the Southern Nevada Health District wears a picture ID badge. Health District inspectors will identify themselves, state the purpose of their visit, and ask to speak to a Person-In-Charge (PIC). They usually carry official business cards.

Did you receive a phone call to schedule a routine inspection?

Routine inspections are UNANNOUNCED. Scheduled inspections are usually follow-up activities such as re-inspections and surveys. If you are currently in the Plan Review process, our Facility Design Assessment & Permitting (FDAP) inspectors may schedule an on-site inspection.

Did they ask for any personal information including credit card information?

Health District inspectors will NOT ask for credit card information. Personal information requests are limited to a name, email address, and phone number. Email addresses are needed to send inspection reports, and phone numbers are primarily used to contact the PIC of a facility in case of an emergency or to request information.

Did they ask you for money or food?

Health inspectors will NOT ask for money; no financial transactions can be handled by a health inspector. Routine inspections do not have an associated fee. Annual health permit fees, re-inspection fees, verified complaint fees, and closure fees are remitted directly to the Health District, either online or in person, at any of the Health District's Environmental Health service locations. A health inspector can give you information about paying fees online or about locations where payments can be made. Health inspectors will not ask for or accept food.

Did they provide an inspection report?

A health inspection (including follow-up visits) will be documented on an inspection report and be sent to the PIC (or designated recipient) via email, fax, or paper form within 24 hours. If a routine inspection was conducted, an inspector will provide a grade card before leaving.

If you are still in doubt, you can call the Southern Nevada Health District to verify information.

Monday-Friday 8:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m.

NOTE: Health inspectors from the Southern Nevada Health District may conduct inspections outside of normal Health District business hours.
